TELEGRAPH REMINISCENCES

Submitted by Village of Richfield Springs Historian Harriett Geywits

A very important contribution to the resort area of Richfield Springs and one that proved to be of utmost importance to the area, was the growth of telegraph communication. In 1861, the area was isolated from the rest of the county.

Communication was limited to a daily mail run to Herkimer by stagecoach. This soon became inadequate for Richfield's growing needs. When the Civil War began (1861-1865) the need for communications quickly grew with the various Provost Marshals and summer visitors who were anxious to have telegraph facilities so they could reach their friends without delay. This lack was seen as a damaging one for the summer business, especially to the three principal hotels - the Spring House, conducted by the late Joshua Whitney, the American Hotel by the late Gen. Wm. P. Johnson and the National Hotel by Benj. E. Caney.

Public minded citizens of the village decided that something should be done and promptly subscribed the amount necessary for a telegraph line to be built from Richfield to Herkimer where messages were to be transferred to Western Union. The capital stock of $3,000 was issued in $25 shares and subscribed for by the citizens generally. Among those who took from five to ten shares were the Hon. A. R. Elwood, Hon. James S. Davenport, Judge James Hyde, Allen Bloomfield, George Cary, Horace Walter, Gen. Wm. P. Johnson, Henry Tuller, Benj. E. Canoy, Alfred Chamberlin, Joshua Whitney and many others.

And so, the Richfield Springs and Herkimer Telegraph Company was organized on October 4, 1860, with shares fully paid. The line was built and opened for business on January 6, 1861. Gen. Wm. P. Johnson was president and Judge James Hyde, as secretary, was the first to send a message from Richfield to New York City. William B. Tunncliff was the first operator and manager in the building known as Washington Hall (later the Canadarago House). He was succeeded in 1865 by Jas. A. Storer, who held the office of superintendent and manager of the Richfield Springs line for more than forty-three years.

The line was a great success and led the people of Cooperstown to want the extension of the line to reach that village. A separate company was formed - the Richfield Springs and Cooperstown Telegraph Co., with Wm. B. Cory of Cooperstown as president, later succeeded by Alfred Chamberlin. The line was built to Cooperstown via Springfield Center in 1864. George W. Vanderveer was operator at Springfield Center. He was a hardware merchant and the father of Nevada Vanderveer, a famous contralto of New York City. The two lines united at the Richfield Springs office and worked as one circuit although the business was separated. Branches were opened in summer at the Cooper House in Cooperstown and at Tunncliff Inn at Five Mile Point.

The stocks of both companies were gradually absorbed by Alfred Chamberlin and A. R. Elwood and consolidated in 1867 under the name Richfield Springs Telegraph Company with lines extending from Cooperstown through Springfield Center, Richfield, Mohawk and to Herkimer - a distance of thirty-one miles. Shortly after, the line was leased to the Western Union Company for ten years followed by a final lease for ninety-nine years. By then, the wire extended from Palatine Bridge to Sharon Springs, from Cherry Valley to Cooperstown and beyond, forming a continuous circuit from Albany to Syracuse. In 1871, Western Union constructed a line from Utica to Richfield along the railroad and doubled the facilities of the local office.

When James A. Storer held the position of operator, the main office was at his book store on Main Street. During the summer resort months, branch offices were maintained at the Spring House and the New American which had direct wires to New York City with the switchboard being in the main office of each hotel. At that time, Morse registers were used for receiving and later sound sending displaced all registers. The messages by telegram had the text in a continuous strip of paper which was cut and glued to the telegram form.

In 1883, the Republican State Convention was held in the Village, brought here by the influence of Thomas R. Proctor. It was said that at the meeting of the state committee in New York, a member of the committee said: "Mr. Proctor, we have voted to hold the state convention in Richfield Springs. Now, where is Richfield Springs?" Mr. Proctor knew that the telegraph facilities were inadequate to handle the enormous business of the convention but he also knew that Western Union would have to provide what was needed in some way. To take care of this convention, the Western Union put up four additional wires from Herkimer to this place where all were cut and operated as double lines, giving it twelve separate wires to New York. A large room was leased for the time being at the Hotel Brunswick. Tables and instruments were provided for fourteen operators. A quadruplex set was installed, making one wire do the work of four. A huge wigwam was built in the Spring House Park by Wm. B. Ward and two operators were stationed there. (This building was later used as the Summer Theater).

Members of the convention came as did the reporters from all the New York papers as well as those from Syracuse, Rochester Buffalo, Utica and Albany, to name a few. With fourteen operators, the great mass of press business was handled with no problem. The regular office and the branch at the Spring House were left for the regular business.

Sidney H. Gifford, Division Superintendent of the Western Union, was told that this convention would cost Western Union $1500 more than it would get out of it with all the additional lines that needed to be built and the 1000 pounds of sulphite of copper to charge the quad batteries, etc. Mr. Gifford said that the company could not choose where it would do business and if the Republicans or Democrats called their conventions in the North Woods, they would be furnished with facilities to suit them. Their business was to serve the public. During the State Convention in 1883, one hundred thousand words of press matter were sent in two days in addition to the usual commercial business.

By 1886, Western Union had added the convenience of a money order system. Amounts up to $100 were paid or transferred by telegraph at a cost of one percent in addition to the cost of the service. This was the year that Western Union leased the lines for ninety-nine years.

In 1901, it was necessary for the workmen to transfer the wires from the Gladstone location of the main office to the new office in the Storer block. In 1904, all the lines including the telephone and trolley poles on Lake Street had to be moved to get them out of the way for new curbing and by 1909, the Western Union office was located at the D. L. W. depot. The office was to find a new home several times thereafter.

With the declining interest in coming to Richfield as a summer resort, the need for the telegraph utilities decreased and the local company did not receive adequate use. It was totally dissolved by Western Union in February 1962. Western Union had kept its lease, even though the lines no longer existed. Notice was given that as of February 2006, the Western Union would discontinue all telegram and commercial messaging services.

The monopoly that they once had no longer existed and the company slowly began to divest itself of telecommunication-based assets and concentrated more on money transfers on a global scale.

What to expect with a tree removal

Trees serve many purposes for a landscape, providing shade and habitats for birds and other animals and serving as natural blinds between two homes. Trees are often beautiful elements of a natural landscape, adding aesthetic appeal to a property or even an entire community. But there are times when a tree must be removed, an action that, in many instances, requires the services of a professional tree service.

A tree with roots invading the foundation of a home or infringing on a patio or walkway can become a safety hazard. Other trees may cast shade where a pool is planned or cause disagreements between neighbors when the tree straddles a property line. These are instances when tree removal will be necessary, and a reputable service can advise as to the best methods for ridding the property of the troublesome tree.

Homeowners will need to do a bit of planning and research to remove trees safely and securely. It is best to contact a variety of different tree removal services and compare their offerings and prices. The cost of a tree removal will vary depending on various factors, including the height of the tree, its width, the number of branches it has, its location on a property and the proximity of that location to potential hazards like power lines. Tree removal may range from a few hundred dollars to several thousand.

When a tree is being removed, most of the branches will be removed to make the tree more manageable. Trees are rarely chopped at the base and allowed to fall, as there simply isn't enough room to safely take this approach. Sections of the tree will be cut, roped off and slowly lowered. A climber will scale the tree or use a cherry picker machine to reach the top of the tree to facilitate the process.

The pieces of the tree will be loaded into a wood-chipper for grinding before they are hauled away. Larger, heavier portions of the stumps may need to be moved later on with machinery. Hauling trees off the property may cost extra, so it is important that homeowners read their contract thoroughly before signing on the dotted line.

Additional costs may be factored into the bill. These can include stump-and-root grinding. Trees will be cut down to the stump. To prevent eyesores or tripping hazards, some homeowners opt to have the stumps ground down into sawdust. This will not remove all of the roots but will take care of most of the above-ground portion of the remaining stump. It is usually up to the homeowner to discard the sawdust or use it as a mulching material.

Expect the ground around the former tree to be soft, and there may be a depression depending on how much stump grinding took place. Some people prefer to wait a season for the ground to recover before planting something new. It may take a while for grass to sprout where a tree was once located, and there may be bare spots when grass starts to grow in.

Tree removal can be an expensive venture but is necessary for different reasons. Be sure that tree-removal services are fully insured before signing a contract. GT144074

LAWN & GARDEN

Cultivate An Herb Garden

Many people cultivate gardens both inside and outside of their homes with a focus on adding aesthetic appeal to their property. But a garden that boasts plants that are edible and pleasing to the eye is a possibility as well.

Planting an herb garden is a creative way to enjoy the sights, smells and tastes of a wide variety of plants. Using fresh-harvested herbs in culinary endeavors imparts a taste that dried spices cannot match. What's more, fresh herbs are often easy to cultivate.

Herbs are versatile, capable of lending great flavor to foods while also playing different roles in personal health and beauty. Herbs can be grown to perfume homes and bodies. There are herbs that are also purported to help with ailments, from upset stomachs to anxiety.

When planting an herb garden, you may want to pay particular attention to the types of flavors and smells you like in your home and cooking. This will help you to narrow down the types of herbs you will plant. Many would-be herb gardeners tend to start small to see what luck they have when cultivating herbs. Fortunately, herbs can grow well in containers indoors, provided the soil is amenable and there is plenty of sunlight.

Herbs will grow best in well-prepared soil. Make sure that it is rich in organic matter and drains well. Also, for plants like parsley, be sure to have deep pots or dig deeply in the garden to establish long taproots.

Until the weather warms up, you may want to begin herb cultivation indoors and then transfer plants outside during the summer. Basil, for instance, is a tropical plant that does well in warm conditions. Therefore, it will need to be kept away from drafts and get several hours of direct sunshine a day. Place most herb planters in a south-facing window of a home to ensure they get ample sunlight and to allow the soil to dry adequately between waterings.

With many herbs, leaf production will diminish on any stems that flower. It is essential to pinch off flowers that form to encourage the herb plant to continue producing leaves, which are the parts of the plant most associated with seasoning and aroma.

CAR CARE

Keeping vehicles looking pristine requires care and diligent cleaning. So many day-to-day activities and environmental materials have the potential to damage the finish on cars and trucks. While winter weather and chemicals used to keep roadways passable are often blamed for affecting the appearance of cars and trucks, winter is not the only time of year when substances can cause damage to vehicles.

Tree sap

According to Cars.com, an automotive information resource and vehicle sales website, although tree sap won't cause immediate damage to vehicle paint, it should not be ignored. Over time, sap can become more difficult to remove, etch through the clear coat on the vehicle and cause discoloration. When the temperature is hot, damage from sap can accelerate.

On windows and windshields, drivers may be able to gently remove dried sap with a razor blade. However, use cleaning products on more delicate paint. Automotive stores sell speciality sap and tar cleaners. Otherwise, you can try rubbing alcohol. It may take a few attempts to remove sap entirely.

Insects and bird droppings

Splattered bugs and avian surprises dropped from above can be a messy, unsightly nuisance. Their acidic composition also may cause them to damage paint over time. Bugs and droppings can be sticky, so you will need to work with something that will remove the splatter without removing the paint in the process. A product like WD-40 may help. This oily product is normally used on rust and hinges. When applied with a cloth and allowed to penetrate the stain, it can loosen difficult-to-remove sticky substances. Always test any product you use in an inconspicuous spot first to make sure it doesn't damage or discolor your the paint.

Insects or droppings that are fresh may come off relatively easily with a good washing or hosing off of the car. Retailers also sell specialty insect sponges to remove bugs and other debris.
