End-of-life Doulas: Providing companionship and guidance through life’s final transition

The Madison County Rural Health Council (MCRHC), a local non-profit organization, is supporting Chenango, Madison and Oneida residents who are facing a terminal illness. With funding from Excellus BCBS and the United Way of Mid-Rural NY, MCRHC offers these services at no cost to support a dying person and their family and loved ones during a difficult time. Christine Paul, Executive Director shares, “We want to provide doula services to help community members navigate a confusing, scary and challenging time in their lives - for both the person nearing the end of life and their loved ones and have the guidance of a compassionate, resourceful and trained end-of-life doula.” Our doulas are available, at no cost, to support a dying person and their loved ones at the time of a terminal diagnosis with a prognosis of six-months or less.

An End-of-life (EOL) doula is a trained, non-medical professional who provides companionship, support, and guidance to those facing a terminal illness and death. They provide care, expertise, and support during all stages of dying by offering comfort and listening, presence during active dying and early grief support. Additionally, EOL doulas offer resources and information to help the dying person, along with their family and loved ones, to make informed decisions in a supportive environment.

One of our trained doulas, Karisha Solomon, shares, “As a death doula, I offer supportive, compassionate and non-medical care to gently guide you up to and through death and dying. My specialty is helping families feel at peace and part of the planning process.”

The role of the end-of-life doula is personalized to meet the needs of the dying person and their family. Deb Hirsch, trained doula, shares, “My goal as an End-of-Life Doula is to listen and provide support. Every person and family are different. I want to learn as much as possible about each individual and provide the support and assistance they are looking for.”

Additional support may include respite for caregivers and loved ones, facilitation of discussions on end-of-life planning and creating legacy projects. Legacy projects are a meaningful way to honor a person’s life and share their story, values, and experiences, such as creating a scrapbook, writing letters, or recording life stories. Alison Boinsanna, trained doula, shares, “My passions are holding space and story crafting. I believe in the power of narratives to transform experience. I value the opportunity to work alongside people as they work through life’s transitions.”

Another trained doula, Meg Tobin shares of her doula work, “I offer a holistic approach that attends to the body, mind, and spirit, helping individuals and their families navigate this profound journey with compassion and support.”

Our doulas are passionate about supporting community members during their end-of-life transition. Janna Weldum, trained doula, shares “My heart’s work focuses on supporting the person in the transition process, along with their families, through my end of life work, my knowledge of the dying process, and my experience as an energy medicine practitioner.”

MCRHC, along with our doulas, recognize the need for support and guidance in our community when it comes to conversations and support around death and dying. Debbie Goodfellow, trained doula, shares, “I feel drawn to be an End-of-Life Doula because everyone is sacred. I want to help families understand the dying process and it doesn’t have to be a sad time. Most important if the dying person has something they still need to resolve in their life so peace comes to them freely.”

The MCHRC End-of-Life Doula program accepts self-referrals and referrals from family members, friends, neighbors, community organizations, healthcare providers, nursing homes, assisted living facilities, hospitals, palliative care and hospice. This program is available to residents of Chenango, Madison or Oneida County, at no cost.

For more information or to make a referral please contact Stephanie Henry at henry.s@mcruralhealthcouncil.org or (315) 313-4399. Visit www.mcruralhealthcouncil.org. ➡

Hearing Loss Study Seeking Participants!

We’re looking for participants for a special promotion being conducted as part of a local out-reach study in your area. Early hearing loss treatment is essential. The tide is turning, and more and more people are recognizing the value of treating even mild hearing loss. Yet, people still wait an average of seven years to treat their hearing loss.

Why get tested and treated if you’re still able to get by?
Here are the reasons:

- Better hearing may protect you from dementia, guard against depression and help you stay socially active.
- Hearing aids today are so advanced they make it possible for most people to hear in very crowded, noisy situations.
- Early intervention “trains” your ears when they are most able, setting you up for more effective treatment and better hearing.
- The hearing checkup is free and painless.

Upon arriving at your appointment you will receive a FREE hearing test and video ear inspection. Using a small camera, we’ll check for earwax buildup and evaluate your hearing—quickly and painlessly. There’s no cost and no obligation—just helpful information about your hearing health.

LOOKING FOR AN AFFORDABLE USED CAR?

SICK OF BUYING rusty junk off of an individual or online and then spending more than you paid for it trying to get it functional or to pass inspection? At Central Auto Sales I take pride in buying quality cars that are still in excellent condition that can supply you with many miles of service in the future. I typically buy my cars from states south of NY to avoid the rust associated with local cars. I have a nice selection of cars in the affordable $4-6K range, most are low miles or low miles for the age. I'm a lifetime resident of Norwich. Buy from someone local. No pressure, no fancy hype, just quality cars at fair prices! Central Auto Sales LLC, 429 Manley Road, Norwich. www.centralautosalesllc.com 607-336-6371.

The Great Pollinator Project Begins at Rogers

Friends of Rogers, the nonprofit group which operates Rogers Environmental Education Center in Sherburne, NY, have been awarded a two-year, $254,000 grant for pollinator habitat restoration and education. The funding comes from the New York Pollinator Conservation Fund, with the express purpose of increasing pollinator habitat and educating people of all ages on the critical role pollinators play in ecosystem health and economic vitality. With this funding, Rogers Center will commence a twenty-five acre habitat restoration project, inviting all members of the public to participate in the process through school programs, public programs, and community events. Native wildflower plantings and invasive species removal have already begun. Anyone interested in participating in the project is encouraged to contact Gil Polk, Community Engagement Coordinator for Friends of Rogers, at gil@friendsofrogers.org.

“This is truly a dream come true,” said David Carson, Executive Director for the Friends of Rogers. “Our team came together to draft an application that combines habitat restoration with outdoor education, and we are fortunate to have received this funding to support pollinator species in Central New York.” Friends of Rogers will be promoting opportunities for public participation this summer. New pollinator-related educational exhibits are currently in the planning stages, including the return of an observation hive to the Visitor Center.

Rogers Center is one of New York State Department of Environmental Conservation’s (DEC) environmental education centers. Tom Shimalla, DEC Environmental Education Bureau Chief said, “This project, perfectly suited for this outdoor learning facility and recreational asset for the region, aligns well with the DEC’s mandate to reduce mowing on DEC lands.”

With generous support from the NY Community Trust, who is managing the New York Pollinator Conservation Fund, the Friends of Rogers will be offering free pollinator programs to the first five schools who sign up for fall programs. Any teachers or administrators interested in scheduling a program are encouraged to reach out to Friends of Rogers Senior Educator, Erica Clark, at erica@friendsofrogers.org.

The mission of the Friends of Rogers is to provide outstanding educational opportunities that excite, inspire, and motivate people of all ages to enjoy, understand, appreciate, and protect our natural environment.
