ARE YOU UP TO DATE?

Submitted by Village of Richfield Springs Historian Harriett Geywits

Why and how long have we needed them? The answer to 'why' is the need to keep track of days and larger divisions of time. The answer to 'how long' begins with the Bronze Age, the period between the Stone Age and the Iron Age, lasting until about 1200 BC. Throughout the ages, various calendars were created but most were based on the time it took for the moon to go through all of its phases.

More familiar to us is the Julian calendar which was introduced in the second half of the fourth century AD, named after Pope Julius I. After many years, it was found that the creators had miscalculated the length of the solar year, eventually making this calendar off by ten days.

Next came the Georgian calendar, derived from the Julian one in 1582 AD. Named after Pope Gregory XIII, it followed the use of twelve months aligned to the agricultural cycles and seasonal changes. To make up the miscalculation of ten days, the Georgian calendar simply moved up the date to skip the days. For example, if you went to sleep on December 8th, you would wake up the next morning and it would be December 19th! The Georgian calendar is now the most used worldwide.

The names of the months of the year have their own history. January and February did not exist for the ancient Romans. Their year began in March and finished ten months later in December. It was centuries before the year was regulated into the months and days of the week that are familiar to us.

There are many interpretations of the sources of the various names used for our calendars. Following are some of those suggested:

January: Named after Janus, a Roman god protector of gates and doorways. Janus was depicted with two faces - one looking into the past and the other into the future.

February: The Romans had always celebrated a year's end with a festival called 'Februa'. Even though Pope Gregory altered the calendar to start the year on January first, some areas still celebrated the new year in February. The month was dedicated to purification and atonement.

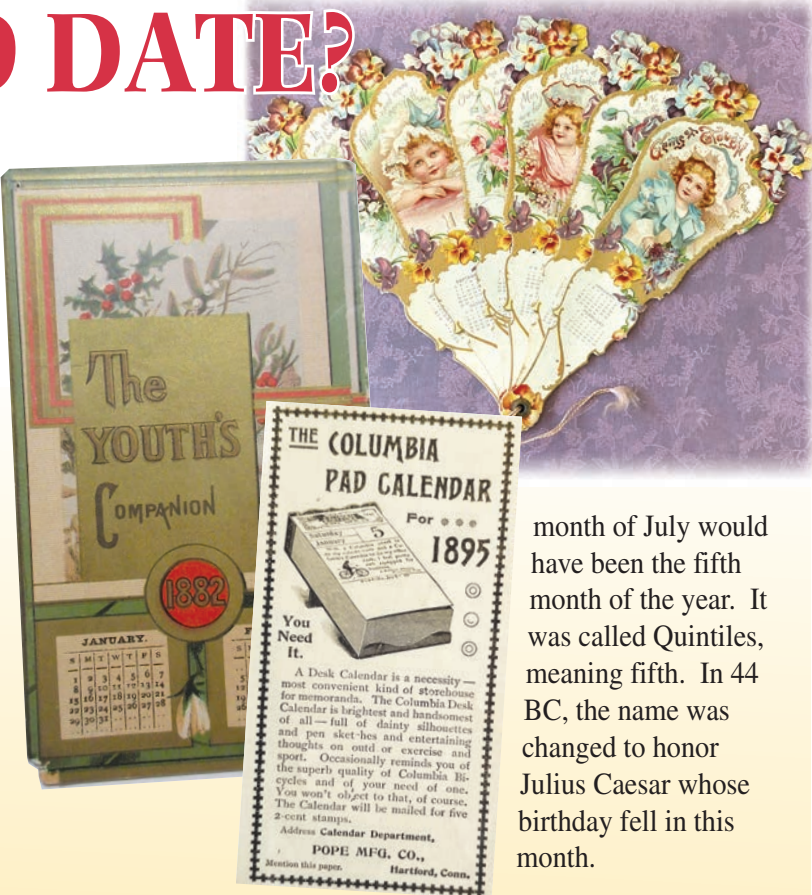

March: Named after the Roman god of war, Mars. If you were born before 690 BC, you would consider this as the first month of the year. Tradition called for Romans to put down their swords in a ceasefire during January and February (the two months between the old and new years) and resume their wars on March 1st.

April: The naming of this month seems to be somewhat of a mystery when you consider that in the ancient Roman calendar, it was the second month. Others, however, believe the name is linked to the term 'aperire', meaning 'to open' in Latin. Others speculate that April is named for the Greek goddess of love and beauty, Aphrodite.

May: The Greek goddess Maia was the guardian of nature and growing plants. According to mythology she was the daughter of Atlas, known as the goddess of the earth.

June: Romans named this month after Juno, goddess of love and marriage. Juno was married to the chief Roman god, Jupiter and was considered the queen of the gods.

July: Since the ancient Roman calendar started with March, the month of July would have been the fifth month of the year. It was called Quintiles, meaning fifth. In 44 BC, the name was changed to honor Julius Caesar whose birthday fell in this month.

August: Previously known as Sextillia, Latin for sixth, it was later named for Augustus Caesar, adopted son of Julius Caesar, when he became emperor of Rome.

September: this was the seventh month in the Roman calendar and was named after the Latin root 'septum' meaning seven.

October: Following the pattern set, this month was named after the Latin root 'octo', meaning eight.

November: The Romans called this month which was the ninth month in their calendar, 'novem' meaning nine.

December: Roman calendars ended with this month so the Latin word 'decem', meaning ten, was used.

The days of the week were named after the sun, moon, planets and gods:

Sunday - Sun - after the Roman god Sol
Monday - Moon - after the Norse god Mani
Tuesday - Mars - after the Norse god Tyr, god of war
Wednesday - Mercury - after the Norse god Odin
Thursday - Jupiter - after Thor, the Norse god of thunder and lightning
Friday - Venus - known as Frigg in Norse mythology, goddess of motherhood, marriage and wisdom
Saturday - Saturn - Roman god of agriculture.

Most of the businesses in town gave out calendars to their customers. Some companies advertised in the MERCURY stating ways in which one could obtain a free calendar. The magazine, The Youth's Companion, offer a free one to new subscribers. The Page Manufacturing Co., offered a desk calendar in 1889, advertising the Columbia Bicycle, popular in this area. Some were strictly businesslike with just name, place and hours printed. Others were very fancy with decorative pictures and shapes. Others provided extra space for notes.

No matter where you get your new calendar, either free or purchased, remember that calendar is a tool to remind us that time moves forward, but it's up to us to give it meaning. A summer visitor to Richfield Springs, Oscar Wilde, is quoted as saying: "Be Yourself - Everyone Else is Taken" - a good adage to remember in the new year.

This was the ad!

I want to take time and thank all of you at the Pennysaver for the great service you have given us the last 10 years.

Ten years ago we advertised for our small seasonal roadside stand and on April 24th it will be 7 years since we have been advertising for our new farm market/store.

There is no doubt in my mind that the Pennysaver has been a large influence on the number of customers that come to Weaver’s Farm Market.

The Sales people and graphic design department at the Pennysaver have been very helpful and great to work with. Our recent Customer Appreciation Day ad was a good example and proof that our customers still look for our ads in the weekly papers and not only online. It is exciting to have so many customers come in the store and tell us they saw our ad in the Pennysaver. As the next generation steps into the business, I look forward to stengthening our partnership with the Pennysaver.

Keep up the good work you folks at the Pennysaver.

Thank You,
Daniel R. Weaver
